Finding Your Colored Brain

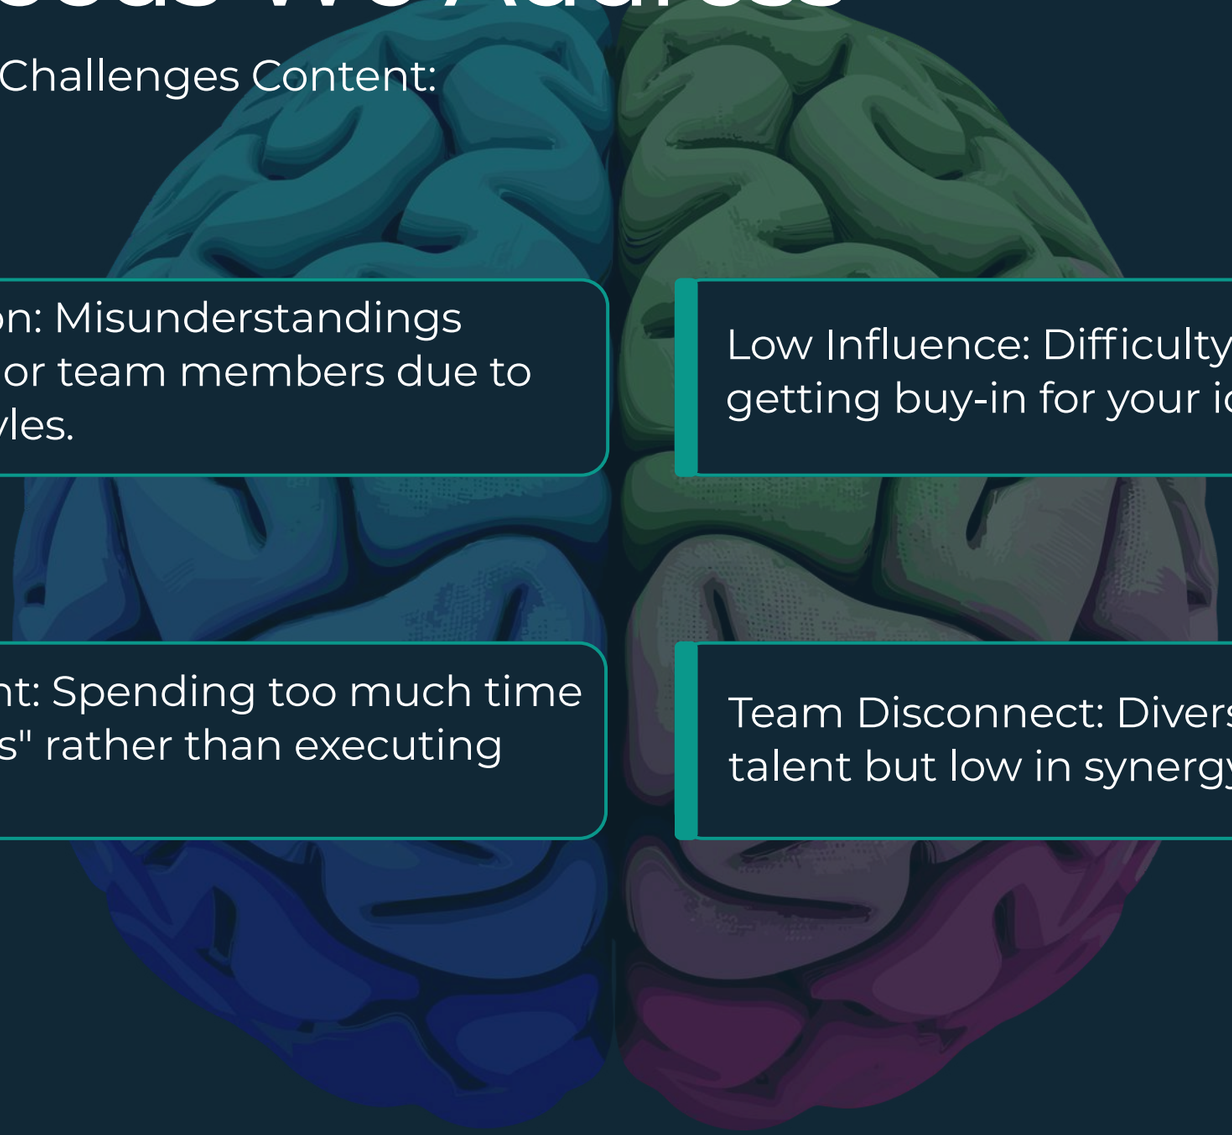

Unlock Your Genetic Thinking Process to Master Communication & Team Synergy

Welcome to a transformative workshop designed to revolutionize how you understand and interact with your team. Discover the hidden forces that drive communication, collaboration, and conflict within any organization.

Training Needs We Address

Solving People-Centric Challenges Content:

Communication Friction: Misunderstandings between departments or team members due to different processing styles.

Low Influence: Difficulty in persuading others or getting buy-in for your ideas.

Inefficient Management: Spending too much time resolving "people issues" rather than executing strategy.

Team Disconnect: Diverse teams that are high in talent but low in synergy and alignment.

Why This Workshop Matters

Stop Managing People Issues, Start Leading Performance.

- The Struggle:
  - You are highly skilled but stumble over people management or building professional relationships.
- The Mismatch:
  - You find it difficult to actualize your full potential or boost your team's peak performance.
- The Solution:
  - Colored Brain is a scientific tool that uncovers your genetic mental processing style, helping you reduce friction and increase influence.

Target Audience

Who Should Attend?

- Strategic Leaders & Managers
- HR & Talent Professionals
- Technical Teams (Engineers/Analysts)
- Corporate Communication Teams

Workshop Objectives

Participants will:

01

Identify Your Color:
Discover your unique genetic brain color (Red, Green, Blue, or Purple).

02

Expand the Circle of Tolerance:
Increase your ability to work with people who process information differently.

03

Identify Danger Zones:
Learn to recognize triggers that lead to conflict or mental "blocks."

04

Drive Synergy:
Apply brain color dynamics to build a high-performing "A-Team."

What Makes This Workshop Unique

Trainer’s Profile

Sunnie Toh is a Lead Consultant and Certified Colored Brain Specialist at Elite Indigo, recognized for her expertise in decoding complex interpersonal systems and mentoring high-potential leaders. As a strategic behavioral specialist, Sunnie’s work is rooted in Directive Communication (DC) Psychology, focusing on how genetic mental hardware influences team synergy, leadership styles, and organizational alignment. Her professional philosophy is built on the conviction that true communication excellence is achieved only when we understand the internal "software" through which information is processed. By guiding participants to identify their unique brain colors, Sunnie empowers them to bridge the gap between individual potential and collective high performance.

A mission-driven facilitator, Sunnie integrates strategic discipline with behavioral science to help professionals operate at a higher strategic altitude. She is widely known for her ability to transform abstract psychological concepts into immediate, "Quick Win" applications that resolve workplace friction and accelerate decision-making cycles. Whether she is leading a group of technical engineers or executive boards, Sunnie’s sessions are designed to cultivate a "Circle of Tolerance" that turns diverse talent into unified "A-Teams." Under her guidance, participants do not just learn a communication tool; they gain a sophisticated lens through which to master human interaction and elevate the quality, rigor, and influence of their professional deliverables.
